Bricks Fall Off P. Campeau's Store

A. McKenzie's Dog Is Killed in Crush

The collapse of the brick work on the front of P. Campeau & Son's store last Saturday created quite a commotion and had it not been for the heavy rain at the time the falling bricks might have caused serious accidents. Fortunately no people were on this busy street at the time.

There was one fatality, however. A. McKenzie's dog was waiting for his master outside the store when the bricks fell and he was buried beneath the debris. The dog was killed instantly. Mr. McKenzie himself just escaped by seconds as he had had his hand on the door latch to come out when the bricks came down with a thud.

The store is now being repaired by D. McLachlan and the owners are replacing the bricks with lumber.

Wheat pool Directors Plan Active Campaign

Will Start Drive for Signing up of Pool Contracts

The board of directors of the Alberta Wheat Pool have decided to commence an active campaign for the signing up of the second series of Wheat Pool contracts. The drive is to start on June 20th.

In preparation for this campaign a conference of the seventy Wheat Pool delegates has been called for Monday, June 6th, in Calgary. This conference will last for two days.

On Wednesday, June 8th, a Co-operative Rally will be held which will be addressed by notable speakers.

At the meeting of the delegates the campaign will be planned. Every wheat produced in Alberta will be canvassed to sign a contract. The Wheat Pool locals, some 260 in number, will be called upon to undertake the work of covering the province. Each of the seven directors will be responsible for the organization of their districts and subsequently meetings will be held throughout the rural portions of the province.

The addresses to be delivered at the Co-operative Rally on Wednesday, 8th of June, will be broadcasted by the Pool.

GORDON MEMORIAL NOTES

Mother and Daughter week will culminate in a special service on Sunday morning, June 12th, when mothers and daughters will take part in the program, the whole of which on that occasion will be constructed around the theme, "The Challenge of the Church to the Girlhood of Today."

The canvass for the debt fund so far as it has advanced is most encouraging to all concerned. The canvassers expect to have their work completed before the regular June meeting of the Board.

Before returning from the Conference of the United Church held in Calgary last week, Mr. Wm. Henderson visited his granddaughter in Banff Mrs. W. H. Kelf. He arrived in Redcliff on Sunday morning.

Mrs. Matheson is a delegate to the provincial conference of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada, being held in Calgary this week.

FREE TRANSPORTATION FOR FARMERS CANCELLED

Free movement of farmers and their effects from the drier areas in southeastern Alberta to new locations elsewhere in the province stopped at the end of May when the agreement between the government and the railways expired. During the past season to the end of April a total of 568 families with 986 cars of stock and effects have been moved under this arrangement. The majority of settlers thus changing their locations have gone to the farming country along the foothills from the Lethbridge district to as far north as Grande Prairie.

Some cards for what drives can be obtained at Review office at a reasonable price.

Much Depends on Public For Success Of Big Celebration

TO BE HELD HERE ON DOMINION DAY—COMMITTEE IS WORKING FAITHFULLY AND REPORT ENCOURAGING PROGRESS—A REQUEST FOR ALL CARS AND HORSEMEN TO TAKE PART IN PROCESSION.

Everything now points to a big day here on July 1st. The several committees have been performing the duties allotted to them in an enthusiastic manner and the only thing that now remains to make the day a decided success is the whole-hearted support and enthusiastic entering into the spirit of the occasion by the citizens generally.

This Dominion Day is the Diamond Jubilee of Canada as a Dominion and it is an event which happens only once in a lifetime. There should be no excuse for any one neglecting to take a keen interest in the day's proceedings.

It is seldom that the general public is asked to do anything special for different events gotten up in town, beyond patronizing it and paying their admission on this occasion it is different. Every man, woman and child in town can do something to help make this celebration one long to be remembered. Every building in town should be decorated in some way in keeping with the occasion. Then there is the procession from the school at 9 o'clock a.m. Every car in town should be in it in holiday attire, or decorated to represent some important event in the early history of the Dominion. Boys and girls with horses should also take part representing Indians and cowboys, characteristic of the West, and especially this province, where both have been pioneers.

We are assured by the school committee that a good program is now under way for the forenoon on the school grounds after the procession. Every parent and child in town and surrounding country should be there as this is one of the most important parts of the day's proceedings. No admission at the school.

In the afternoon there will be our annual stampede on the stampede grounds. For this there is a lengthy program, of horse races, athletic events backing contests and steer riding and good prizes are offered for every event. All who can, should take part in these events and make their entries in good time.

In the evening there is the big bonfire and dance. A whole day's program at all of which everyone should be present.

This is a big undertaking for the committee as in charge in view of the fact that almost every town in the Dominion is having something similar for the day, but if the people of our town and surrounding country are loyal to their own town and district and all are willing to do his and her share there is no doubt of its success.

Since the above was put in print we have been informed that arrangements are under way to have a procession on the evening of June 30th made up of decorated cars which will make a tour of surrounding districts and through Medicine Hat to advertise our celebration for the following day. Every car owner in town should make it a point to get into this procession For particulars of this procession see A. R. Ballantyne or Wilfrid Campeau.

It can be easily seen from the above outline just how much depends on the general public for the success of the day. Let us all get busy right now and make our plans for what we are going to do individually.

ANOTHER PRODUCER FOR THE SUNBURST FIELD

Anniversary Of Battle Of Sanctuary Wood

In Which There Were Many Casualties From This District

Today is the eleventh anniversary of the battle of Sanctuary Woods, battle is of particular interest to Redcliff and district as in it the 3rd C. M.R's which recruited around here, played a very important part. So far as this district is concerned it was one of the most disastrous battles of the war. Only forty of the two hundred odd who went into it came out alive. Those from Redcliff who came through it alive were Mjr. Sneddon, Herb Cox, S. Benson, R. Messenger, F. Newman, S. Kelsie and J. Crompton, and these were all badly wounded. The Redcliff boys killed in this action were Sam Miller, R. Lang, W. Neales and J. Hall. The casualties from Medicine Hat were also exceptionally large. Brigadier Mercier also lost his life.

WHEAT POOL NEWS

The last boat, the Yonei Maru, will load three hundred thousand bushels of wheat in June for Shanghai.

The first British Columbia Wheat Pool local to be formed was organized at Bridesville, B.C., by W. J. Jackman, director of the Alberta Pool. British Columbia wheat farmers are greatly interested in the Pool.

The terminal elevator site purchased by the Alberta Wheat Pool in Vancouver Harbor is one of the best locations for an elevator to be found there.

Abandon Work On Roth Oil Well Here

Men Get Instructions to Stop Operations and Fill in Hole

Just as drilling operations in the Roth oil well here were about to be resumed after a three weeks' delay of awaiting repairs for the motors, word was received yesterday from the Roth interests instructing the men in charge to discontinue operations and fill in the hole.

This means that the well here will be abandoned. The announcement comes as a great surprise as it has been thought or some time that the indications were very encouraging.

As a result of instructions received yesterday the men in charge here have already started closing down operations. The casing is now being removed and plans are under way to have the hole cemented in. The hole is now down over 3000 feet.

While this well is being abandoned the Review is informed it does not mean that the Roth interests have given up hope of striking oil some place in this district. We are informed that prospects are good for putting down another test hole some place near town and that operations will be started on it as soon as possible.

Now that it has been decided to abandon this well every precaution should be taken to see that escaping gas and water should be so harnessed as not to interfere in anyway with our gas supply.

It promises everyconsideration for Canadian residents working across the border during the six months to which the units months in which they must try to conform to the United States immigration law and conveys a virtual promise that British-born Canadians who cannot get a place on the quota this year will be granted an extension of time.

The note also promises continued study and co-operation with the Canadian legation to "clear up difficulties and dissatisfaction with regard to border crossing," with a recommendation to congress next session for the removal of anything inherent in the law "which tends to affect adversely the friendly relations between Canada and this country."

Blue Sky Laws Badly Needed

With better times now prevailing and business expanding in all directions, work piled up and waiting good, high pressure salesmen of stock in all manner of companies are again much in evidence. Some of the propositions laid before people who have a few dollars to invest are sound enough; others are speculative to a degree, with the probabilities that any money invested will be lost, or, at best, will not be productive of dividends for years to come. The more glowing the prospects held up, to the gaze of the innocent investor, the greater the possibility that the investment is a decidedly risky one; in fact, not an investment at all.

Unfortunately, it is an extremely difficult matter for anybody but an expert, as those who make it their business to keep fully informed, to distinguish between the good and the bad of the stock selling propositions presented to the general public. The only safe course to follow before making investment in any stock is to consult a banker or some reputable financial institution. It is better to be safe than sorry.

It is furthermore unfortunate that the company laws of Canada do not provide adequate protection of the public against these professional promoters of questionable stocks and so-called securities. Canada has reason to be proud of its general code of laws, but in this one respect the Dominion of Parliament has been sadly neglectful of its duty in that it has not provided safeguards against the people of Canada being victimized by persons and corporations offering questionable stock for sale to an unsuspecting public.

Some provincial governments have endeavored to protect their people, only to have their best efforts largely defeated because of the refusal of the Dominion authorities to supplement those efforts. As a result thousands of Canadians every year are robbed of millions of hard earned savings.

For example, some years ago the Saskatchewan Legislature passed an act prohibiting the sale of stocks of any kind within the Province unless the Company offering the same first submitted their proposals to the Local Government Board and obtained the approval of that Board and its consent to the stock being offered for public subscription. Certain companies incorporated under Dominion charters challenged the right of the Province to so restrict their stock selling activities, and, upon an appeal to the courts, the Saskatchewan law was declared invalid in so far as companies incorporated at Ottawa are concerned. The situation, therefore, is that any company holding a provincial charter, and whose stock the Saskatchewan Local Government Board will not permit being offered for sale, has only to obtain Dominion incorporation at Ottawa to defy the Saskatchewan Legislature and sell any kind of stock it likes, good or bad.

It will be recalled that much the same situation existed when the Province first adopted prohibition of liquor laws. The Province could and did prohibit the retail sale of liquor, but they were powerless to stop its manufacture within their boundaries, and equally powerless to prevent it being brought into the province from other provinces or foreign countries, because this would be to interfere with trade and commerce which come solely within Federal jurisdiction. Public opinion, however, became so aroused that the Dominion authorities were forced to action before the result that the law was amended to provide that where a Province adopted prohibition it became unlawful under Dominion law to ship liquor into that Province.

There is need for a similar enactment in relation to Company incorporation. All that is needed is a very simple amendment by the Parliament of Canada to the effect that, where any Province passes an Act prohibiting the sale of stock in any company unless the same has first been approved by Provincial authority, such law shall be applicable to a Company incorporated under Dominion charter in so far as that province is concerned.

To the average citizen there would appear to be no insurmountable difficulty to the passage of such a simple and reasonable amendment. In fact, the average citizen would imagine that the Dominion Government would be just as anxious as Provincial Governments to protect their people from being victimized by unscrupulous company promoters and stock salesmen. The amazing thing is that, notwithstanding pressure from Provincial Governments, representations from reputable business organizations, strong editorial appeals by financial and other papers, the Ottawa Government declines to do anything, but allows a deputy minister at Ottawa to stubbornly block all efforts made to provide ample safeguards to protect Canadian citizens.

Representations have for some months past been made to one Provincial Government regarding the operations of one of these high pressure stock selling concerns, and protesting against what amounts to legalized robbery, but all the Provincial authorities can do is to admit they are powerless because the Company in question operates under a Dominion charter.

And within recent weeks this very Company has been shown up in reputable financial journals as having secured over $2,000,000 from Canadian citizens, of which considerably more than $1,000,000 went into the pockets of a subsidiary company as "commissions" for selling the stock. In fact, the parent manufacturing company has less than one dollar to show for every two dollars invested by the public. Not only so but the Company has never declared a dividend, and for every dollar's worth of goods it has manufactured and sold it has cost the Company five dollars to make the sale. Yet this Company is still being permitted to sell stock throughout Canada and is doing so to unsuspecting people on the strength of very promises of big dividends to come.

It is high time that a certain cabinet minister at Ottawa freed himself from the influence of a reactionary and autocratic deputy head and drafted legislation to be presented to Parliament at its next session upholding and supporting the Provinces in their efforts to put an end to this stock jobbing and legalized robbery, which today is a blot on the fair name of Canada.

Most men would be glad to lay a large income tax for the sake of saying that kind of income.

Chinese First Paper Makers

Learned Method by Watching Wasp Says Old Legend

According to an old legend, the Chinese first learned to make paper by watching the wasp build her nest. A Chinaman watching the wasp one day discovered that she took a bite of wood, chewed it into paste, and created it on her nest. When the paste became dry it turned into something like the present day paper. Thus the Chinese learned to make paper from wood long before any other people in the world.

Canadian Offices in London

Offices of Immigration and Trade and Commerce May be Combined

Hon. Robert Rogers, Canadian minister of Immigration, and Hon. James Malcolm, minister of trade and commerce, while in England this summer, will jointly consider the feasibility of combining in one building the branch offices in Britain and on the continent of their respective departments, it is understood. Such a procedure would eliminate duplication of services and in a certain extent duplication of office staffs.

Mr. Malcolm has already received instructions that the allocation of $100,000 for advertising Canadian goods in Britain will not go very far in making a widespread appeal. It is understood that one suggestion meeting favor is that when big English stores take a large space for general advertisement, Canada should pay a proportion of the cost for whatever amount of space calls attention specially to Canadian goods.

Survey of Hudson Strait

Objection is Taken to the Term "Arctic" in Describing Conditions

President J. A. Stoneman, of the Saskatchewan section, United Farmers of Canada, protests against the Canadian Press despatch of April 24, regarding the air survey of Hudson strait on the ground that it describes the conditions of the strait as Arctic for most of the year.

In reply, J. F. B. Livesay, general manager of the Canadian Press, expresses sorrow. If the despatch can be construed in the sense complained of, explaining that the use of the term "Arctic" in reference to weather conditions to be encountered in the strait, is used more in descriptive than a geographical sense. But the expression itself, he says, has the sanction of the authorities, for Arctic winter and the Arctic zone are not necessarily confined to the Arctic circle.

In conclusion, Mr. Livesay says:—"The object of the expedition is to report more fully than has been done hitherto on the period of navigability of Hudson straits, and as those of us, in eastern and western Canada, who have faith in the Hudson Bay route, will look forward confidently to very encouraging results which, however, will not be attained in the winter months without exposure to pretty rigorous climatic conditions."

A Puzzle for Scientists

Life Cannot Be Defined Says Professor of London University

That a living organism is not to be differentiated from a non-living substance so readily as is commonly supposed was demonstrated by Professor J. C. Drummond, of the biochemistry department of the London University, in a lecture on "Biochemical Aspects of the Nature of Life." The point he made was that differences living organisms appeared to be traceable ultimately to differences in the proteins of the constitution of their cells, and that this might give a mechanistic solution to many biological problems passing into the field of chemistry. Professor Drummond said one could not define "life," because we were but beginning to recognize that only the smallest differentiation could be made between the living and the non-living.

If they attempted to judge which phenomena were characteristic of the living and which were typical of the dead systems, they found that such characteristics as assimilation, respiration, growth, reproduction, irritability and movement were, collectively, typical of the living, and offered a rough and ready method of differentiation, though some of these characteristics might be shown by non-living systems.

T. A. Torgeson, of Estevan, Sask., was declared elected as district governor for the coming year at the close of the first session of the fourth district of Rotary convention at Winnipeg. One thousand persons were in attendance.

Sounding the note of high idealism which characterized the objects of Rotary, past international president D. A. Adams, appealed for the embodiment of these ideals in the life of every Rotarian, in a stirring address.

The governor's report showed Red Deer, Alberta, to have won the George Roche trophy for attendance during the year, while Prince Albert club won the Osborne trophy for the largest percentage increase in attendance.

MacMillan Going North Again

Will Lead Expedition Into Arctic Latter Part of June

Setting sail from Wiscasset, Maine, next June 28, Commander Donald B. MacMillan, Arctic explorer, will head a new expedition into the far north to spend 15 months exploring and studying uncharted Arctic wastes, the Field Museum of Natural History, sponsoring the expedition, has announced.

A race still living in primitive state and virtually unknown to science except as Naskapi Indians, will be sought out and studied; the fossil mountains of Baffin Land, a region of creatures or evidences believed to have lived there thousands of years ago, and the remnant of the last great ice sheet which in a past geological age swept down across part of North America, will be explored and studied.

London Man's Unusual Watch

Tells Time of Day in Ten Different Parts of World

Nicholas J. Mockett has been dubbed London's "ten thing man" because he owns the only watch in the world which tells the time of day in ten different parts of the world. The unusual watch has ten hands, each telling the time of day in a different part of the world.

The hands are painted different colors. They represent the time in New York, San Francisco, Chicago, London, New Orleans, Buenos Aires, Melbourne, Shanghai, Capetown, Calcutta and Mid-Atlantic.

Hudson's Straits Air Survey To Undertake Hazardous Work In Northern Waters This Summer

The Hudson's Straits air survey expedition will set out from Halifax on board the Canadian government ship Stanley, early in July, according to information from Ottawa.

For the following fifteen months the Royal Canadian Air Force detachment will be engaged upon one of the most intensive and hazardous flying jobs ever undertaken in the North. It is stated. The flights across the Pole were brilliant feats, but they were in the nature of short dashes, involving some hours of endurance, but the Royal Canadian Air Force work will occupy fifteen months of day to day flying under all kinds of Arctic weather conditions for the purpose of observing fog and ice conditions.

During the early summer six Fairchief seaplanes will be put through severe tests and conditioned for the work in the North. Nearly fifty officers and men under Flight Lieutenant Lawrence will be engaged on the work.

The planes, along with a vast amount of material including all food and clothing, fuel and building materials, will be packed on board the Stanley. The expedition will be broken into three detachments upon the arrival at the straits. One depot with twelve officers and men and two planes will be established on Nottingham Island, which is in the centre of the western end of the straits. Another depot with a similar establishment will operate from Port Burwell, on the northern tip of Labrador, while the headquarters station will be at Lake Harbor, on Baffin Island, about halfway through the straits.

Powerful wireless equipment will be taken north and it is expected that the expedition will be in almost daily touch with the Air Force headquarters in Ottawa.

The navigation part of the survey will be under the direction of the Department of Marine and Fisheries and it is quite possible that Alex Johnston, deputy minister of the department, may go north on board the Stanley in July. The Stanley, which is now being reconditioned, will not stay in the straits throughout the winter, but will return south late in the summer.

Parliament at the last session approved a vote of $800,000 for the survey, but unofficial estimates put the total cost at nearer a million dollars. It is pointed out, however, that at the conclusion of the work there will be a substantial salvage; the Air Force will have the seaplanes and the Department of Marine will have the reconditioned Stanley, which has been out of use for some time past.

The Air Force report will be made to the Government and upon the results of its findings of ice and fog conditions in the strait depends much of the future possibilities of the Hudson's Bay Railway. At the other end of the Hudson's Bay route there will also be flying activities this summer. A private flying company has been taking in men and equipment from the present end of steel to Port Nelson and Fort Churchill and before the end of the summer Hon. Charles A. Dunning may look over the terminal possibilities himself by seaplane.

The Air Force expedition is quite separate from the annual trip of the Northwest Territories' officials. This voyage will be carried on as usual, taking mounted police and scientists in and out of the Arctic.

A High Birth Rate

Canada Leads All the White Races of the World

Canada's birth rate leads all the white races of the world, being 25.4 to the 1,000. Saskatchewan's rate is even higher, being 24.7 per 1,000. New Brunswick alone surpasses Saskatchewan with a rate of 27.1. Saskatchewan also enjoys the distinction of the lowest death rate among the provinces, and, in fact, in the world, the figure being 6.8 per 1,000 of the population. Next to Saskatchewan is New Zealand with 8.3 per 1,000.

Advice for Airmen

Remarkable Instructions Issued by British Air Ministry to Pilots in Training

"Chew gum and click your cars!" These are two remarkable pieces of advice contained in the latest instruction manual issued by the British Air Ministry to pilots in training. It appears that flying at high altitudes causes a different pressure on the outer and inner eardrums and constant swallowing is necessary in order to equalize it. Chewing gum helps to keep the muscles of the head active in this way. Pain, temporary deafness, and other ailments caused by the unequal pressure can be cured by "clicking" the ears. This strange feat is performed by pinching the nostrils and breathing outwards.

Registered Seed Grains

Saskatchewan Seed Pool Reports Doing a Big Business

The business of the Saskatchewan Seed Pool is reported more than double that of last year. There has been a particularly big increase in the call for forage crop seeds, while the demand for seed oats shows a bigger increase than the call for seed wheat. Ample offerings in all lines of registered seed grains are on hand at the cleaning plants, taxing the present facilities to the utmost.

Raw Fur Production

Total Market Value of Pelts Taken by Trappers Reaches High Figure

To the value of $1,500,000, the Canadian Fur Auction Sales, Limited, sold a wide variety of pelts in the recent five days' session at Montreal. "One of the best sales weeks we have ever staged," according to F. H. Pingree, general manager. Silver fox skins to the number of 2,600 were auctioned, the top price being $415.

The total value of the raw fur production of Canada for the season 1925-6 was $14,565,588, compared with $15,441,561 for that of 1924-5, and $15,643,817 in 1923-4. These figures represent the total market value of the pelts of fur-bearing animals taken in Canada by trappers or on ranches. In the order of importance, muskrat comes first with 1,953,345 pelts at 2,614,175, followed by beaver with 117,767 pelts valued at $2,208,855. Next came mink, red fox, white fox and silver fox.

Alfalfa Seed For Denmark

Two Carloads of Seed From Alberta Shipped to Denmark Growers

The sale of Grimm's alfalfa seed, grown in the Brooks district, and shipped to Denmark is claimed as another "feather" in Alberta's cap. For some time past, experiments have been carried on in Denmark with this particular seed. So successful have these been, that the Danish growers purchased two carloads. The Danish growers would have taken twice that amount had it been available, but owing to United States growers placing large orders, the local seedmen have not been able to keep up with the demand. Growers of Grimm alfalfa seed have been paid $40 an acre clear for their product.

B.C. Has Advantage in Dairying

Stock Can be Pastured Practically All of the Year

The prediction has been made by Dr. G. C. Creelman, former president of the Ontario Agricultural College, that British Columbia will become the greatest dairying district of Canada. This is the conclusion he has made from a study of conditions on the Pacific Coast. One great advantage is that dairy stock can be pastured practically the whole of the year, whereas in Ontario they had to be fed six months in the year and 60 per cent of the produce of a 100-acre dairy farm with an average amount of stock had to be used for feed.

German Firm Insures Against Bad Weather

Quite in Keeping With Progressive Spirit of Age

For many years we have been used to hearing of odd guarantees undertaken at Lloyd's in the form of insurance against all sorts of risks in almost every conceivable manner and under the most weird conditions. It has remained for the German insurance companies to undertake a general weather policy. The advantages of this ought to be obvious to the most obtuse mind. For instance, suppose you have arranged to take your holidays in the first half of August, and...instead of sunny skies and balmy air, you have hovering clouds and continuous rainfall. What a comfort it would be to notify your insurance company and quietly await the arrival of their cheque "in full settlement of claim on account of inclement weather."

According to this German system, you can take out a policy for any number of days in the whole year, so there is no difficulty about safeguarding yourself. How the matter will work out if racing men begin insuring themselves against turf losses through weather risks it is not so easy to determine, but doubtless methods will be found to protect the insurance companies from any misinterpretation. The principle of insurance against weather reverses seems a sound one, quite in keeping with the progressive spirit of the age.

Growing Desire for Beauty

Ninety-nine Thousand Rose Trees Purchased Last Year

Each successive year sees a considerable contribution made to the general beautification of Canada. Evidence of this is disclosed in a recent report issued by the Canadian Government Bureau of Statistics, which states that ninety-nine thousand rose trees were purchased last year from wholesale growers in the Dominion alone.

Nine hundred thousand other ornamental trees and shrubs were bought from Canadian growers to be planted about the homes. Home makers bought half a million plants, and many thousands of bulbs, and of the dozen varieties of cut flowers asked by florists, the flower-loving public took fifteen million plants, payed over a million and a quarter dollars for them.

These figures do not include imported plants and flowers, nor those raised by amateur gardeners, a vastly greater showing. The figures are simply those of the wholesale trade, which received over a million and a half dollars from the retailers and direct purchasers.

This was the first year of the inquiry, and there are hundreds of nurserymen who made no returns.

Statistics show that nearly all motor accidents occur at week-ends. Monday was once washday. Now it is the day when mother sees whether or all her family have survived the week-end.

First Refugee from Chinese War

Mrs. Melvin Southwick, of Harrison, N.Y., returned to New York, April 12th, aboard the world-cruising Canadian Pacific flagship Empress of Scotland, with her infant daughter (then 12 weeks old), who was born in Hankow, China, a few days before the inhabitants were ordered to evacuate. She went to Shanghai and thence to Kobe, Japan, where she embarked on the Empress of Scotland. Her husband is still in Hankow, acting as representative of the Standard Oil Company there. He was met by her mother, Mrs. Freda Becker, when the Empress docked. Mrs. Southwick looks none the worse for her adventure, but that may be due to the kindness of the passengers on the C.P.R. vessel's world trip, who couldn't do too much for her and for whom her dramatic escape and presence on the ship added a final thrill to the many they experienced on their globe-circling journey. As for Miss Southwick, she wasn't interested either in the Chinese or her numerous adventures.

Western Inland Fisheries Have Been Developed More Highly Than In Any Part of the World

Alberta Forage Crop Cars

Forage Crop and Poultry Cars Convey Information to Farmers

The forage crop and poultry cars which were operated in Alberta by the Canadian National Railways in conjunction with the Alberta department of agriculture have concluded their itinerary. Twenty places were visited and the movement was confined to districts in which the Western wheat-stem sawfly is now ravaging or in which the fertility of the soil, due to continuous grain growing, is rapidly becoming depleted. Where soil improvement is found, the inclusion of forage crops in the farming rotation will add fibre and increase the soil content of available plant food, and as sweet clover and the found saved forage crops are immune from attacks of wheat-stem sawfly, the growing of such crops will play an active part in controlling and eliminating this pest.

The total attendance was 1656 or an average of 82.8 persons per meeting. Forage crop seeds* amounting to 6,559 lbs., valued at $954.10 were sold, comprised of—corn, 426 lbs., grasses, 2,319 lbs., sweet clover, 2,915 lbs., and alfalfa 400 lbs. At each point lectures on the value of forage crops in the farm rotation and their relation to the keeping of live stock were delivered by James Murray of the Alberta department of agriculture. Interest was keen and many questions on cultural methods were asked.

A lecturer on poultry gave talks on the fundamental principles necessary for the successful care and management of the farm flock. Much interest was shown by farmers in this phase of farming, which indicates they are rapidly becoming appreciative of the value of including side lines in their farming activities. Many farmers took the opportunity of consulting one of the poultry lecturer to secure supplies of hatching eggs and day old chicks.

"Carat" as Applied to Gold

Refers to Purity or Quality and Not Actual Weight

"Carat" is a corruption of a word that used to stand for a particular part of the coin. As these seeds were always exactly the same size, they became a recognized standard of weight for such small articles as jewelery and precious stones. In the weighing of gold, 24 of these carats went to one special coin, now long obsolete.

Today the term carat has nothing to do with the actual weight of gold, but refers to the purity or quality of it. By itself gold is too soft for common use, and has therefore generally to be mixed with some other metal, and when we speak of "22 carat" gold we mean that out of 24 parts of it 22 are really gold. As a matter of fact, even this alloy of 22 parts in 24, or one-twelfth, of harder metal is rarely sufficient, and except for wedding rings, 22-carat is seldom used, 18, 15 or even 9 carat being far more common.

De Luxe Airplanes On London-Paris Route

Machines Are Capable of Carrying Twenty Passengers Each

Airplanes with buffets, bars and other luxuries have been put on the London-Paris service by the Imperial Airways. Trains will leave each city at noon daily and the line will be known as the Silver Wing Service. As there are no regulations for licensing airplane restaurants or bars the company will be able to sell food and drink aerially without a license. Each plane will carry a steward.

Three-engined Argosy machines capable of carrying twenty passengers each, will be used in the new service.

The company has decided hence forth to name all planes after cities, the new planes named the City of New York and the City of Washington have been flying between capitals.

The old-fashioned man who used to put his fourteen-year-old son on the train for a twenty-mile journey and tell the conductor to take care of him now has a grandson of the same age who can drive the distance in twenty-three minutes.

Nowhere in the world have inland fisheries been developed as they have been in Canada. Apart from Canada's share in the Great Lakes fisheries which are valued commercially at some $3,000,000 annually, there are tremendous bodies of fresh water literally teeming with fish of the highly edible qualities.

In all the three Prairie Provinces, numerous lakes and rivers, covering nearly 31,000 square miles in area, abound in valuable food fishes. Whitefish, the most abundant species, is unexcelled in quality and to the great demand, while pickerel, jullibee, lake trout, pike, goldeyes and sturgeon, with its attendant product caviar, also find a ready market. Other varieties include perch, jullet, catfish and ling. Whitefish, weighing over four pounds each, dressed, are known as "Jumbos" and bring the best returns. Dealers paid the following prices for the summer catch of 1926, on the basis of dressed fish at the point of shipment,—jumbos, ten to fourteen cents per pound, and whitefish weighing less than four pounds each, from six to ten cents per pound.

Commercial fishing is for the most part carried on in the winter season, when the chilled or frozen fish may be shipped to distant points. This winter catch is marketed in the Canadian interior and adjoining American states. A large demand has been created in Chicago and numerous other middle western cities, when occasional shipments have been made to such distant points as Montreal and New York. Some summer fishing also takes place, the catch being marketed in the nearby towns.

The value of the fisheries from the so-called prairie provinces according to the latest official returns is $2,265,000 annually although if the value of fish caught for domestic and sport angler's use could be estimated and added the total would doubtless be very much higher. The importance of the fish supply to native life in isolated northern districts is indeed beyond monetary value.

Some of the greatest lakes in the continent — Reindeer, Athabaska, Great Slave, Great Bear—and hundreds of other important but smaller bodies of water are still beyond reach of commercial exploitation through lack of transportation facilities.

During the past couple of years, according to information issued by the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior, there has been introduced into this fish food industry a new branch of unusual economic importance, namely, the filleting of pike. Heretofore this kind of fish had no market value, but it has been found that fillets of pike, neatly cut, packed in wooden boxes and shipped fresh on ice or freshly frozen, can be readily disposed of now in the markets which handle the whitefish.

Though the pike is a coarse fish and somewhat unattractive in appearance it has a good, wholesome food value, and when the edible portions are separated from the white, bones and other waste, they can be shipped and sold to advantage. In fact this is the most economical manner of shipping many species of fish and the ready-for-cooking form in which the product is thus displayed in retail shops appeals favorably to the ultimate consumer. Enterprising fish dealers in some eastern sections are now advertising their products in this form almost exclusively.

The introduction of this branch of the fishing industry to Western Canadian waters is proving a distinct value that only enlarges the market range of the fisherman, enabling him to dispose of a product formerly valueless, but it encourages the capture of a desirable fish and these voracious habits make it a source of great havoc among the more highly prized white-fish, pickerel and other species. This filleting of pike is now being successfully prosecuted as far north as Lesser Slave lake where a plant is in operation.

VIEWS OF GREAT MEN

Let us discard all resentment, all passions, all petty jealousies, all personal desires, all love of place, all hungering after the gilded crumbs which fall from the table of power. Let us go to the fountain of unadulterated patriotism, and think only of our God, our country and our conscience.

THE SOVIET EXPOSURE

SOME idea of the seriousness of the situation unearthed by the British government in connection with the treachery of Russian representatives in all countries, and of the views of other nations concerning same, may be gathered from a speech made recently in France by Myron T. Herrick, U.S. ambassador to that country. On that occasion, Mr. Herrick declared openly that the ruling powers of Soviet Russia were engaged in paid propaganda activities throughout the whole world and that the United States would not tolerate he spread of Bolshevism to her shores.

"I believe," he continued "that the people in every country have got to choose between order and anarchy, between honesty and thievery, between everyday virtue and crime. Either we believe in orderly society, or we don't; if we do we ought to use all the power within us to defend and advance it. The impudent, mischievous intereference of paid, organized propaganda throughout the world has gone steadily on and, in common with others, I have been forced by these events to view with increasing apprehension this sinister movement."

Mr. Herrick said the Bolshevist system thus far seems to the world in general more tyrannical and oppressive than any preceding despotism. Continuing, he said:

"We have no though of attacking the Soviet regime in Russia; what it does on its own 'reservation' is its own affair. But we do object with all the earnestness of a self-respecting nation, and quite regardless of material consideration, to give to its leaders the means and opportunity of poisoning us. We intend to protect our country from Bolshevism and that fact that a government secretly sends against us the germs of a lothsome malady instead of openly despatching armies, does not make the invasion less felonious or alter our duty to repel it."

The Old Country may be referred to sometimesas slow to move, but when it does move it is generally in the right direction.

Ontario business organizations are again taking concerted action to get Alberta coal East. Too bad there isn't some business organization in connection with the federal government to work with them.

The British parliament has rendered valuable service to the whole world by its success in exposing the treachery of Russia. Even China and Mexico have already done a little investigating for themselves and they have evidently found out that the British tip was genuine.

The great publicity which Lindbergh is now getting for flying from New York to Paris makes one ask, "What ever became of George Young?"

Capt. Lindbergh, the hero of the New York to Paris flight, now claims relationship with Premier King. Probably because Mr. King flew from Toronto to Prince Alberta.

Townspeople are advised not to wait till the last minute to get decorations, such as flags, bunting, etc., for their homes and places of business, on Diamond Jubilee day.

The heavy rains of the past two weeks show that the town is badly in need of some system of drainage. Water in the pools by the roadsides is finding its way into cellars. This may prove unhealthy and also do considerable damage to foundations.

Who would ever have thought that Toronto, The Good,' would be the Canadian headquarters for representatives of the Russia Soviet. Well, the new law which goes into effect in Ontario this month was expected to attract tourists of all kinds.

It is now being stated that the floods along the Mississippi were caused by the large amount of water which Chicago has stolen from the lakes and dumped into the rivers. The way of the trangessor is hard, whether it be an individual or a nation.

Old Country Labor is now finding fault with their members of Parliament because they are dressing too stylishly. Labor should remember that now-a-days it is'nt the coat that makes the man. It's the pants and vest.

The Medicine Hat News wonders under what circumstances Mr. McGillivray broached the subject of an amalgamation of the Liberals and Conservatives to dethrone the Farmers' party from power at Edmonton. The News either has a very short memory or else it does not keep well posted in what is and has been going on in some quarters not very far away.

Recent investigations have shown that rum runners between Canada and U.S. have introduced many novel ways of transporting booze from this to the other side of the international boundary, but the most barefaced and disgusting was exposed the other day when it was found that an abandoned travelling church wagon, with biblical quotations printed on its sides, was used for this purpose.

It is evident there a number of parents in town who neglect reporting cases of contageous diseases in their homes, to the Medical Health Officer. This is a serious matter and we are assured by the Board of Health that such neglect will be severely dealth with in future. Parents should be warned in time. It costs noting the report, but failure to do so may cost a great deal.

Perfection is beyond our reach. All that can be hoped for in this world is a taste of the least imperfection.

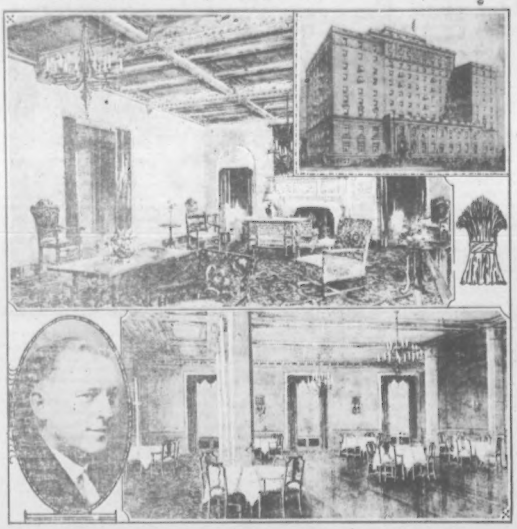
New Hotel for Queen City of the Plains



Upper:—Rotunda of the new Hotel. Lower:—The Dining Room is of Italian design. Insets:—The new Hotel Saskatchewan and T. E. Chester, the manager.

One of the most beautiful buildings in Western Canada is the "Hotel Saskatchewan," Regina's new hotel, which was officially opened by E. W. Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific, on May 24. In it the architects have sought to provide the maximum of convenience and comfort for its guests and to obtain the most pleasing architectural effect.

Regina's need for a new hostelry has been felt keenly for some time, as the city's importance as capital of the province which furnishes 50 per cent. of the Dominion's wheat output, has been steadily increasing. The erection of a hotel in Regina was interrupted by the war, and the removal of the old steel structure less than a year ago, marked the first step towards the realization of Regina's dream of a new modern hotel, which at last has been brought about through the enterprise of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Pleasing artistic effects have been achieved throughout the interior of the building. The public rooms, which are numerous and spacious, each have a character of their own. The Tea Room and Rotunda, for instance, have a Spanish atmosphere. The walls of the former are of antique mottled and decorated plaster with a base of stone and a carved stone mantel, while the ceiling is a wood rib and beam ceiling, painted and decorated.

One of the most comfortable and homelike rooms in the hotel is the library, situated on the first floor. The walls are of panelled wood with enclosed bookcases.

The exterior is no less beautiful than the interior. It is designed in Georgian style, the first two storeys being faced with Tyndale or Fonti stone quarried near Winnipeg. The main entrance is particularly striking with its tall Corinthian pilasters and arched windows.

There are 216 guest bed-rooms with baths, and space for 90 more on the two top floors of the building which, as yet, have not been finished.

On account of the nature of the soil, the hotel was erected on a reinforced concrete mat with structural steel plate girders embedded in the concrete. It is eleven storeys high and absolutely fire-proof.

Not Allies

Nothing But Close Friendship Between Britain and United States

Formal addresses have now been made by the British Ambassador to the United States and by the American Ambassador to Great Britain — almost identical in tone—deprecating strongly the suggestion that there should be a British-American alliance.

Both Ambassadors dwelt with emphasis upon the great wisdom and priceless worth of the closest possible friendship between these two nations. Their ideals and their moral standards are at least as similar as their language. To neither can was bring anything but devastating loss, and to both peace is a paramount interest. An intimate and permanent mutual understanding is the best insurance that either can have against danger and the finest guarantee of world-peace that can be given to humanity today.

But an alliance would be regarded by the rest of the nations more as a challenge than as a guarantee of peace. They would be very likely to regard it as an effort to impose an English-speaking hegemony on the human race. Here would be the two most powerful political entities in the world linked together in a formal military and naval alliance, saying to all and sundry that this tremendous power, actual and potential, was ever ready to be mobilized behind Anglo-American policies.

Inevitably, it would set all other races and peoples by the ears. It would seem to be the latest rendering of the Pan-German idea—a megalomaniac dream which had a lot to do with precipitating the late war. Bismarck told his royal master that he should walk softly after 1870, because "Europe would never stand any cock-of-the-walk business." And he was right. It was the Germanic challenge, citadeled in the heart of Europe, which drove France and Russia together and finally brought Britain into the same orbit. Pan-Anglo-Saxonism must never have the same mistake—Montreal Star.

Shoes of First Century

Leather Soles With Low Heel Unearthed in England

Leather soles of shoes belonging to the Roman women of Londinium in the first century A.D., were among the interesting discoveries at Founders Court, Lothbury, E.C., recently, where excavations are proceeding on the banks of the River Walbrook near the Bank of England.

Small and pointed as any modern shoe, these leather fragments, embedded in the mud of the old Walbrook, have survived the ravages of time to show that the Roman girl was as proud of her footwear as is her modern sister.

Three such soles have been found, and none of them is worn in the slightest degree, apparently indicating that the owner had discarded them as out of fashion.

The high heel had not yet made its appearance, for one of the women's soles had a low heel, something like a rubber one, still fastened to the leather.

Old Turtle Found

Was Tagged 37 Years Ago in Marsh Near Hamilton Ontario

The Dundas marsh near Hamilton, Ontario, has yielded another curious catch in the form of a large turtle which bore on its shell a small copper plate, which showed the tortoise had been caught in 1930 by M. Franks, Burlington street, and again released. From what can be learned the turtle was quite small when Mr. Franks caught it 37 years ago. It is now two feet long and sixteen inches across the wide part of its back. It was caught this last time by Bert Duckworth, who lives on the shore of the marsh.

Should Know Better

The singer who attended an audition held by the pantomime producer had a good tune, but dropped all her aspirates.

"Quite a good voice," said the producer, "but really, I should like to hear an aitch or two."

"If you knew anythink about music," was the contemptuous reply "you'd know there's nothink 'igher than G."

Stout theatrical person (engaging room) — "Window's a bit small. Wouldn't be much use to me in an emergency." Landlady — "There ain't going to be any aich emergency. My terms for actors is weekly in advance."

The most intricate step, and the one requiring the most lively music, is known as footing the bills.

Getting Rid of Weeds

The Different Methods Followed for Eradication

The prevalence of weeds is a great drawback to farmers throughout the country. They rob the soil of plant food and of moisture, thus increasing the effects of drought by taking up water from the soil and wasting it by evaporation. Being hardier, and, as a rule more prolific than the useful plants, they crowd them out. They increase the cost of every farm operation and cause depreciation in the market value of crops, and their eradication is costly in labor, time and machinery. It therfore behooves every farmer to get as much knowledge as he can of the nature of the weeds with which he has to contend, the ways in which they are spread, and how to protect himself against them. All this information may be found in a bulletin of the Dominion Department of Agriculture on "Weeds and Weeds Seeds," distributed by the Publications Branch of the Department, Ottawa. The bulletin tells how weeds are introduced on the farms with grass, clover and other commercial seeds and feeding stuffs, and how they are spread from district to district by railways and other means of transportation, by stable manure and threshing machines, and how they are disseminated in many other ways. Of the different methods of eradication when once the weeds are established, summer-fallowing has proved to be the most generally satisfactory, but the amount and nature of the cultivation of a summer-fallow depends on the habits of the particular weeds, the kind of soil, and climatic conditions. Using intertilled crops may be substituted for summer-fallow under favorable conditions, and systematic rotations requiring thorough cultivation are profitable methods of control. Seeding to grass for hay and pasture is often a useful method of getting rid of weeds, especially annuals.

A Bit of Canada in England

Lady Byng Grows Canadian Flowers on Her English Estate

Over 1,500 different Canadian plants and shrubs have been planted at Thorpe Hall, near Peterborough, where the ex-Governor-General of Canada, Viscount Byng, resides with Lady Byng. Since their return to Thorpe, Lady Byng has made wonderful changes in the grounds in front of the house. She is an enthusiastic gardener, and a "Daily News" representative found her busy in the grounds.

There is a large lake, where various Canadian water fowl are rapidly making themselves at home. Not far away a noisy waterfall feeds two smaller lakes, and stepping-stones. Little islands and natural banks make up a beautiful picture. Everywhere there are strange and peculiar plants, some taken from the Canadian prairies and dropped into quiet Essex soil. Some are gifts of Canadian friends, and many brought by Lady Byng herself from Canada.

The much-talked-about swamp frogs have not arrived yet. They are coming from Ontario, and a miniature swampy piece of ground awaits their arrival.

Declares Story a Myth

London's Lord Mayor Says Whittington's Cat Never Existed

History won't vouch for a cat that has charmed children for centuries, Sir Rowland Blades, lord mayor of London, shocked traditionalists by announcing in a speech. The cat, which is supposed to have brought his predecessor, Sir Richard Whittington, fame and fortune, never existed, Blades declared.

The lord mayor said he had been searching the records and had failed to find any contemporary reference to the cat. The story of Dick Whittington's cat he added, has been traced to an Austrian source, two centuries later and truth "must prevail over sentiment."

Canadian Sheep Exports

Breeders Are Reaping Reward of Raising Prize-Winners

Partly as a result of Canadian sheep exhibitors winning more than eighty per cent. of the championships, reserve championship and first prizes for sheep at the International Live Stock Exposition at Chicago in the last few years, breeders of pure bred sheep in Canada are now enjoying an additional measure of reward. Shipments of different breeds of pure bred sheep raised in Canada are being sent to several countries, the largest orders coming from the United States, Jamaica and Russia.

Sheep breeders in other countries have found that the climate in Canada is a helpful factor in producing a hardy strain, consequently increasing the animals' resistance to disease.

The demand for Canadian sheep from different parts of the world began to reach a noticeable point about five years ago. Since then it has been increasing each year, so that now there is a good market for all the more popular breeds and the prospects are that the demand is likely to become more active.

Round-up of Wild Horses

Roving Bands of These Animals in British Columbia

Hundreds of wild and vicious stallions which roam the ranges of the Cariboo and Cranbrook districts, heading bands of wild horses, are being destroyed by cowboys under government supervision now. Big roundups of these animals will take place at many points in the interior during the next few weeks and the useless horses, which are a menace to the stock industry, will be shot.

These roving bands not only utilize the range for cattle, but they lure domestic horses away from ranches. Alberta agricultural interests are considering the advisability of importing large numbers of the bodies of the wild horses to be used for fertilizer purposes. It is announced at the lands department at Victoria. Roundups of horses for this purpose in the Okanagan Valley are under consideration now.

Must Keep Accurate Time

Experts were busy performing a most delicate task in connection with England's shift to summer time — setting forward King George's watches and clocks. There are more than 300 royal timepieces at Windsor Castle and their adjustment must be accurate to the second. The most valuable clock in the collection is the one in the turret over the state entrance to the Grand Quadrangle, which has been going for a century and seldom varies ten seconds in a week.

Indian Stone Mirror

Interesting Relic of Early Days is Found in B.C.

While there may not have been beauty parlors in pre-historic days, the Indian braves and belles who inhabited what is now Central British Columbia, had their own methods and appliances for enhancing their charm. "The rouge and cosmetics" used were obtained from natural coloring materials, but a recent discovery shows that hand mirrors also existed in those days. The discovery was made by a Dominion archaeologist party, in the pre-historic part of the ancient Gitksan village site immediately below Hazelton, of one of the extremely rare stone mirrors known to have been used by the Totem Pole Indians of the Skeena Valley area.

The specimen is a thin slab of black stone, one end of which is narrowed for a handle and the other has its flat surface highly polished. One of the older Hazelton Indians demonstrated to the archaeologists how this was used. The mirror surface was wet and when this is done the polished surface actually reflects the human face so clearly that individual hairs and the color of the eyes are discernable.

The Indian stated that such mirrors were used by the Indians when they were "making up" their faces for tribal dances and ceremonies in the days before the white man introduced the present looking glass. The specimen secured is being sent to the National Museum at Ottawa for the preservation among the pre historic Indian relics.

Canning Fruits and Vegetables

Canning Can be Done in the Home by Simple Method

Canning is now recognized to be the most practical and economical method of preserving large quantities of fruits and vegetables for home use during winter months. "A can of fruit, a can of vegetables, a can of greens for a family of six for every day in the year that the garden is not producing" is the slogan advocated for every housewife in a new bulletin on "Preserving Fruits and Vegetables in the Home," distributed by the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. The constant use of fresh and canned fruits and vegetables means better health for each member of the family. The canning can be done in the home simply and inexpensively without elaborate equipment. Full instructions are given in the bulletin which contains recipes for the preparation and doing up of all kinds of fruits, vegetables jams and jellies.

CANADA LOOKS GOOD TO THEM

Here is a typical group of peasant farmers and their families from the United States, who have removed bag and baggage into Western Canada, which, as one of them stated, "looks like the land of real opportunity to us." In addition to being farmers of long standing and thoroughly acquainted with all the methods necessary to ensure the successful operation of a large tract of land in Western Canada, these welcome newcomers have plenty of capital to establish themselves and also a considerable amount of farming equipment. There are three families in the photograph. Two of them have gone to the Lindlaw district, Saskatchewan and the third to the Margo district of Saskatchewan.

Last year, through the efforts of L. R. Boyd, superintendent of Colonization for the Canadian National Railways at St. Paul, Minn., 355 families such as these came to Canada and have established themselves. In every case they brought with them large quantities of agricultural machinery and it is estimated that the head of every family had at least $5,000 in cash available for investment in his enterprise. On the extreme right of the picture is seen O. B. Grimley, a member of Mr. Boyd's staff who accompanied these families to Canada and saw them safely to their destinations.

A Little Tale of Home Nursing

Reformation of Living Habits Effected Through Proper Instruction

In an industrial centre in New Brunswick, a Red Cross nurse who was conducting one of the Home Nursing Classes which Miss Barrington has made so popular a feature of both urban and rural life in that province, observed coming in with one of the regular members, one evening, a girl who had never before attended. She was daintily but untidily dressed, painted, powdered and "gay" in appearance, but the nurse noted that had both an unhealthy and unhappy look, and a manner little short of reckless.

With this girl and others of her kind in her mind the instructor keyed her lessons that night to the connection between health and beauty. She described the really attractive girl as one with clear skin, bright eyes, shining, well groomed hair, and an alert, wholesome mind. She pointed out, that these things did not come from accident but from intelligent care of the body and mind. She stressed the need of good, properly cooked food, of drinking plenty of good milk, of avoiding over indulgence in sweets and late hours, of opening bedroom windows, of walking, of cutting out late hours and of consuming many vegetables. In concluding her lecture she appealed to the class to try her plan if the health of health was desired and she particularly noticed that the flashy girl was very intent on what was said. However in the press of business she soon forgot her.

But about two months later after a class had been completed, she found two girls waiting for her and one of them, a fine rosy cheeked healthy looking young woman said to her, "O, nurse, I owe that you do not remember me, but I have come to say 'thank you' to you. I came to one of your classes last fall with Mary C— and you told us all about the connection between health and good looks. I confess that I was in a very reckless temper that night. My grandad with whom I lived had just threatened to cast me out if I did not cut out the late hours, at the theatre, dances and flashy eighbers, and I had about decided to leave his house and him when I met Mary and we came along to your class in Home Nursing.

"Well, when I heard you talking as you did, I began to think that grandad was not so far wrong perhaps. I was really fond of him, you know, only I thought he was a back number. But that night you had made up my mind that I would try your plan for a week and see how it worked.

"So I bought more milk and drank a pint a day. I watched my diet, opened the windows at night and kept better hours. I ate lots of fresh vegetables and tried to be sensible. At the end of the week I felt good, so I went right on. Did I? Just look at me! And I am a lot happier and so is Grandad. I am engaging to a nice plain man, and I think I am a much nicer girl myself than I was. So I felt I just had to come and tell you about it."

The nurse, much cheered about her work reported to Miss Barrington, Supervisor of Red Cross Home Nursing in New Brunswick, that she "had made a convert," but Miss Barrington who in the past year has organized 77 classes and has seen 1,200 women and girls enjoy and profit by the instruction given, only smiled for she knows that while there may be few cases of conversion so spectacular as this, there is a gradual reformation of living habits in all whole communities being effected through the knowledge which is imparted to the home makers of her province or other parts of Canada in the Home Nursing classes.

Surplus of Women in England

Increase of Five Hundred Thousand Over Pre-War Figure

The World War has left more than 1,700,000 surplus women in England, an increase of 500,000 over the pre-war figure, it was revealed in the final volume of British census returns.

The increase over men was most marked among those women of marriageable age, there being 1,470 unmarried women between the ages of thirty and thirty-five for every 1,000 unmarried men. Much smaller families also resulted from the war, as well as a reduction in the population increase rate. Despite this the population of England has reached 27,750,000 or one person per acre.

Forest Fire Loss Reduced by C.N.R.

Railway's Campaign of Education Results in Large Saving

A persistent campaign against forest fires throughout the Dominion of Canada brought a reduction in fire damage along the lines of the Canadian National Railways during 1926, according to W. H. Kilby, Chief of Forest Protection on the National System. During 1926, total fire damage over the 21,000 miles of the Canadian National Railways in Canada amounted to $13,552 or about 64 cents average loss per mile of track. The acreage burned over is shown as 6,041 acres and 420 fires were attributed to railway causes. This makes the total value of property destroyed by fire along the lines of the Canadian National System during 1926, about equal to that of a medium-sized house in one of the cities." Mr. Kilby stated, "and this reduction in losses has been brought about by constant care and supervision.

"The week of April 24 to April 30 inclusive was set aside as 'Save the Forest Week' in Canada, but in order to reduce fire dangers along our lines we have made every week 'Save the Forest Week' on the Canadian National System.

"Our forest protection program" Mr. Kilby continued, "is of equal importance to us as any other part of railway policy, for the forests not only contribute a large share of our total freight revenue, but a large part of railway expenditures must also go for forest products.

"During 1926, it is estimated, the Canadian National Railways' bill for products of the forest amounted to more than ten and three quarter million dollars, and the cost of ties, poles, timbers and other products necessary for railway construction, bridge building, etc., is constantly increasing as the forest growth diminishes. So far as the forests' contribution on freight revenue are concerned, it is estimated that these furnish about 20 per cent of the total tonnage handled by the railway company. More than 12,750,000 tons of woods and forest products were handled by the Canadian National Railways during 1926, and to handle these in one shipment, in ordinary trains, would require some 6,350 locomotives; nearly 2,500 miles of trackage and 32,000 trainmen.

"With this in mind, it is obvious that saving the forests during every week of the year is vital to the Canadian National Railways, even if it is considered only from a selfish, financial point of view."

New Citizens of Canada

Italians Head the List of Those Becoming Naturalized

Foreign people to the number of 16,787 became naturalized Canadians in the fiscal year which closed a month ago. This is an increase of 1,294 over the corresponding period of the last year.

The great preponderance of the new citizens come from the West, where gradually to homesteads depend upon naturalization. Of all races, however, the Italian in Canada is generally the most anxious to acquire the rights of citizenship and as soon as the five years residence is fulfilled he is usually after his naturalization papers. American homesteaders and the Jewish people also are pretty prompt.

Italians headed the list last year with 2,510 naturalizations. Poles came next with 2,618, United States citizens third with 2,354, Russians fourth with 2,157 and Austrians fifth with 2,139.

Other naturalizations were: Rumanians, 1,199; Belgians, 431; German, 413; Swedes, 456; French, 302; Greeks, 229; Norwegians, 216; Hungarians, 107; Turks, 164; Bulgarians, 101; Japanese, 81.

How Should I Wean My Baby?

This is a serious problem to many mothers. Weaning should always be done gradually, beginning about the seventh month, giving one or two bottle feedings during the day. Increasing the number of bottle feedings gradually until weaning is accomplished. Borden's Eagle Brand Milk is so like mother's milk in taste and ease of digestion that it can be given alternately with breast milk without causing abrupt weaning.

In this paper from time to time you will find an advertisement of Borden's Eagle Brand Milk, a food that has raised more healthy babies than all the prepared infant foods combined. Cut out the advertisement and mail it to The Borden Company Limited, Montreal, and they will send you, free of charge, instructions for feeding your baby, and a Baby Welfare and Baby Record Book. Or, just write the Company, mentioning this paper, and they will be sent.

Italian Arrested For Selling White Bread

Law Imposed by Mussolini Forbids Any But "Economy Loaf"

Snooping fascists, at Naples, followed a hearse. Sniffing, they inhaled the aroma of fresh bread. Soon the mortician was handcuffed, his hearse found to contain white loaves. Weeping, imploring, the wretched culprit was dragged away, was jailed. He had broken the law forbidding the baking, transport, or sale within Italy of bread whiter than the "economy loaf" imposed by Signor Mussolini—a loaf duller of whole wheat flour, or of white flour mixed with coarser grain. Signor the municipal-banker had with him a list of rich Neapolitans who have been buying his bootlegged bread, these potent folk trembled, feared arrest or fascist reprisals for their iniquity.

I began to feel discouraged when I would think of the work necessary for me to do. I got some medicine from the doctor whom I consulted, but it did not appear to meet my case as I showed no improvement while taking it. Then a neighbor advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I got a supply of this medicine. Motor Drivers in Britain

One in Twenty of Inhabitants is a Motorist

How many people are there in Great Britain who actually drive motor vehicles.

The figures issued by the ministry of transport showing that 2,190,946 licences were issued last year in respect of cars, commercial vehicles and the motor cycles de not, says the Daily Mail, give an indication of the number of people who actually drive, nor of the number of vehicles in existence, as a large proportion of the licences were for quarterly periods.

But there is another return which gives $2,849,550 as the amount received for driving licences. In this sum is included a very small amount received in respect of unpaid car licences. Driving licences cost $1.25, so that there were more than 2,200,000 actual drivers of motor vehicles in 1926. In some cases a private car is driven by several members of the family.

Taking the population of Great Britain as about 44,000,000, one person in every 20 is therefore a motorist. They have a long way to catch up with the United States, however, where approximately one person in every six owns a motor car.

Will Benefit Mariners

New Device Will Help to Minimize Dangers of the Deep

Had mariners known of such a thing as a "water report" back in the spring days of 1912, the Titanic might now be plying her majestic way across the seas and 1,500 lives might have been saved.

Dr. A. G. Huntsman, of the biological board of Canada, speaking before the oceanography section of the American Geophysical union, said the "water report" is based on tests of temperature and salinity. In the case of the Titanic, he said, it would have warned of the proximity of icebergs. It will benefit fishermen, too, in locating schools of fish and will aid meteorologists in making weather forecasts.

Future of Vancouver Port

Canada's Trade With Japan Shows Big Increase

Canadian exports to Japan during 1926 increased by $11,951,489, as compared with the previous year, according to figures released by the Japanese consulate at Vancouver. Japan is now Canada's third best customer. Canadian wheat and lumber accounted for the greater part of the increase.

Exports from Canada to Japan during the year amounted to $27,197,459, of which wheat and flour totalled $15,767,929, an increase of $5,909,867. Lumber and allied products were exported to the value of $8,742,121, as compared with $6,863 089 during the previous year. Zinc and lead formed the third largest item exported.

The market for Canadian butter and beef has also improved, while trade in cheese and condensed milk also show large gains, trade in the latter developing from $353 in 1925 to $167,735 for the past year.

Imports into Canada from Japan show the largest increase in textiles, fibres and other products, these increasing from $5,428,351 in 1925 to $7,904,802 last year. Silk cloth, woven and imported for the purpose of being dyed and finished in Canada was imported to the value of $2,585,455, an increase of approximately one million and a quarter dollars over last year.

Contend Aerials On Schools Are Dangerous

Paris Authorities Instruct Directors to Have Them Removed

On the grounds that wireless aerials might during a sudden storm crash down to the ground and injure passersby, the directors of Paris public schools have just been requested to take down the aerials erected over their buildings.

The Paris municipal authorities justified their decision by arguing that the wireless sets installed in buildings used as public schools are not used by the directors for the purpose of teaching their pupils, but solely for their own personal amusement.

One Paris newspaper remarks that objections might be considered just as dangerous as wireless aerials and therefore ought to be abolished forthwith.

CHAPTER XXXV

The Fete

Pierrots and mannequins — pupils in conventional evening black that uniforms eager and blase boys alike, and the mannequins of their bonne world in the peacock splendeur that heeds the cheap and the superb; Pierrots and Columbines, eyes sliding with the thrill of youth that crosses every threshold with unconscious pause to endless stream they drove from every reach of the Riviera to the gates of Villa Amelie.

Beyond the gates the gardens and terraces, miniature lakes and fairy like structures in delicately pink stucco, were bathed in a dull silver flood of artificial moonlight. On the lakes tiny gondolas floated lazily, though waters rippled by dimly illuminated fountains that spotted faint perfumes.

Hidden somewhere in a bower of orange trees an orchestra played its lamentations and its caricatures of summer night passion. Tall palms, feathery topped, black and fantastic, made towers around bunches and tables; great stretches of the lawns had been carpeted with enchilosa, some purple lilacs, rhododendrons, hyacinths and clematis. Now and then, from the branches of a pepper or fig or pine tree, some fascinated bird of semi-tropic plumage, too curious to seek its nest, gazed down upon the scene with goggle-bright in quisitive eyes.

During the day the gates had been closed to all visitors. Only the workmen caterers, electricians, and the spluttering, queer-mannered men who herded troops of dancers and more tendersript performances, had been allowed to enter the grounds. There had been frantic efforts in many quarters to break through the barrier so firmly guarded by watchmen, but none had been successful. Even the telephone, except that line which reached the offices of the servants, had been shut off. So it was that even the intimates of Villa Amelie, those who had watched the preparations from day to day, were utterly amazed at the splendor, the lavishness, the consummate artistry of the spectacle into which they strolled.

Teddy Ikerslaer, who had been one of those whose call during the day had been futile, stood amazed when, with his sister, Betty Weymouth, at his side, he turned about, on the highest terrace, to look over the sloping lawns. Betty exclaimed:

"Truly, an appropriate whim for a Golden Girl!"

John took her suddenly in his arms. She did not resist but yielded to him limply.

"Daring, brilliant, extravagant!" Lord Teddy murmured. "But just the sort of thing we might expect —from her! It's not barbaric; there is nothing flaunting. It is a splash of countless money and munificence but a mellow splash. Somehow I see a note of wistfulness in it all."

Betty Weymouth was silent a moment. Then she said:

"Do you know, Teddy, I think you're right. There's something in this scene tonight, this fete, that isn't mere extravagance; it's uncanny, I know, but I believe theres' sadness in it, some place."

"Yes. Like a beautiful woman. There's joy always, but for some one, sadness, too!"

Betty looked at her brother quickly, and understandingly. The sadness he sensed would be for him — that the girl whose spirits were being given expression tonight was beyond his honest want of her. "Come!" Betty said. "This is no time to be sententious. There is Roddy Kenilworth, looking none the worse for that thrilling adventure he's assured to have experienced last night with Joanna. Perhaps he'll tell us something. Nobody seems to know the straight of it!"

Kenilworth, who frankly admitted that he was provoked by Joanna's refusal to hear from him during the day, treated the inquiries by Lord Teddy and Betty wholesomely. "Whatever you've heard isn't true," he said. "And what's true isn't interesting. Just a comic opera hold up, with something fishy about it. The Monaco police notified me today that all valuables taken by the bandits had been mysteriously delivered to them in a package with the terse suggestion that they be returned to their owners."

"But Joanna?" Betty Weymouth asked. "You should never have taken her up La Turbie, Rodd. There are ugly hints about."

Kenilworth ignored the probing. "It is ten o'clock already," he observed, "and neither she nor Yvonne has appeared. Both of them have an admirable sense of the dramatic."

Footmen in powder and gold moved among the guests bearing trays on which cobwebby glasses and silver decanters clinked. Wines of Brittany and the more sensuous fluids of the Asiatic tinted foods. A young debutante from America, one of those whom Joanna used to copy but who now, planned long and earnestly to hit upon ways of copying her, exclaimed to her companion:

"It's like a scene in a stupendous movie only so different! A movie party is always so coarse and cheap. Here everything is on such a scale of splendor that is romantic! There is so much wine and champagne about, but no one is silly!"

As English roosters whirled away on the salmon bowered dance floor with a partner borrowed for the moment from a celebrated beauty from the chorus of the Folies Bergere. An Indian Prince, scornful of the rules of his caste, wrapped a sari with his sombre black eyes about a gentle girl in satin and pearls. A Deputy of France discussed his wife with a Monte Carlo mascotte in whose sooty head reposed the secrets of many other wives.

Into this enchanted garden the Golden Girl walked at last, with Yvonne beside her. In no bit of her that the eye could discern was there a memory of the night before; of the bitter, disastrous hour in the Bibelcom at the club house on La Turbie; of the desperate drive down the mountain, or of the scene at the fireplace with Yvonne and John at the ardors. The poise of her was regal, arrogant. The crowd that watches the turn of her head, the shimmer of her gold brown hair, the dancing of a thousand phantoms in her deep brown eyes, saw only the pride and consciousness of her golden aura and her self indulgence. It seemed to every one in that crowd that when Joanna had looked upon them, had accepted greetings and expressions of wonder, she gave her brown crowned head a merry toss and then plunged into the seething torrent her presence had conjured.

Kenilworth managed to reach her. He caught her hands and hurried into a cascade of questions about the outcome of the night after the bandit took her away, but she laughed at him. "I'll think and talk of it to yesterday tonight, Roddy," she bantered. "I'm living now just for the hour. Everyone who dislikes me; everyone who scorns me; everyone who loves me is here tonight who knows? You may dance with me once—a waltz, I think, Roddy. You may hold me close. I want every one to hold me close, tonight. If you haven't talk—of anything except of me just as I am tonight. Come!"

She led him to the nearest dance space. At every token of her, wherever she went, orchestras burst into their melodies. She stopped the band that had essayed a fox trot and ordered a waltz, and danced it silently with Kenilworth. When the music died she turned to another, waving her hand as she swept away.

CARRIED WIFE TO BED

Suffered So She Could Not Walk. Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Minesing, Ontario. "I am a practical nurse and I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to suffering women. For three months I was almost helpless and could not sit at the table long enough to drink a cup of tea. Many a time my husband carried me to bed. I would be so weak. Then he read in the paper of a woman suffering as I did who got better after taking the Vegetable Compound, so he went and got it for me. When I had taken three bottles I was just like a new woman and have had splendid health ever since. When I feel any hearing-down pains I always take it; sometimes a half bottle or whatever I need. It is my only medicine and I have told many a one about it. Any one wanting to know more about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I will gladly write to her. I do all I can to recommend it for I feel I owe my life and strength to it." — Mrs. NEAL BOWSER, R.R. 1, Minesing, Ontario.

Do you feel broken-down, nervous, and weak sometimes? Do you have this horrid feeling of fear which sometimes comes to women when they are not well? Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is excellent to take at such a time. It always helps, and if taken regularly and persistently will relieve this condition. G

World's Most Modern Warship

Last One Allowed Great Britain Under Washington Treaty

The 25,000 ton Nelson, the last battleship Great Britain can lay down under the terms of the Washington treaty, has arrived at Southampton from the Tyne shipyards.

It is the absolute last word in battleships, said to be the most modern in the world, and the first British battleship to copy the method of triple gun turret. The turrets each contain three 16-inch guns, while there are also steel turrets for 8 inch guns are of the new size and fire shells weighing more than a ton. The guns themselves weigh a little more than 110 tons each and are protected by a special Dick Arbuc.

The ship is protected from aircraft by hardened steel, bombproof decks, and under water it is designed to resist the explosion of mores than four torpedoes. How many aeroplanes and catapults for discharging them are carried is kept secret. The battleship is 762 feet long, 106 feet broad, and carries a crew of 1,200 officers and men. Her cost — £7,000,000 ($35,000,000) to build and requires £452,000 ($2,260,000) for annual upkeep.

World's Record Hen

White Leghorn Hen Proving a Money Maker for B.C. University

"Mable," the White Leghorn hen, that last year established a world's record by laying 351 eggs in 365 days is proving a good money maker for the University of British Columbia Farm. Known as "Hen No. 6," she not only provides over the world's record pen, but with her eggs is helping build up the treasury of the University $2,500.

"We have actually sold $1,625 worth of stock from Hen No. 6, and have reservations for $1,275 worth, which will bring the total up to $2,900," says Prof. E. A. Lloyd, head of the Department of Field Husbandry. "Hen No. 6 is a member of the world's record pen, from which we are selling a considerable number of hatching eggs, particularly from the other four 300-egg members of this pen, at $5 to $10 per egg."

Egg and progeny from this pen have found a market in all parts of Canada, the United States, and as far away as Australia.

Advance in Medical Science

Instead of Eating Fasting is Recommended as Cure

Somebody dug up a document out of some eighteenth century papers showing some curious practices of doctoring in those days. One of those papers revealed that sick persons were sometimes ordered to eat seven meals a day, as much as they could stuff in a time, with concomitant copious drafts of brandy, sherry and other wines.

No doubt the idea was that the patient should "eat to keep up his strength."

Nowadays the tendency — especially among the chaps who make easy money by writing medical columns in the newspapers — from an easy chair instead of getting around means sick folk — is precisely in the opposite direction.

People are told to take plenty of exercise — pumping themselves away from the table, for instance, before they are satisfied — and not only to cut down on diet substantially, but even to indulge in a fast for a few days or a few weeks occasionally.

In fact, fasting seems to be recommended as a sort of cure-all.

This complete turn of the wheel reminds us of the story of the man who went to a doctor and complained of stomach trouble. "Take heavy meals," said the medico, "and that should cure your ailment."

A week later the man went back and said the trouble was worse than before.

"Eat very sparingly," replied the physician, "and that should cure your ailment."

"But, doctor," protested the man, "you told me just the reverse last week."

"Um, yes," said the wise man. "But, you see, medical science has made vast strides since then."

Flying Conditions Will be Investigated Before Contracts Are Made

The experimental work in connection with the post office department's air mail program will not likely commence until the early fall.

It has been decided not to call for tenders for any definite air-mail routes at the present time. The intention is to secure accurate information respecting flying conditions before any contracts are entered into with private concerns.
